The first thing you need to do is work out if you're after a roller door or a sectional door. Roller garage doors roll up like a carpet to sit above the garage opening, while sectional doors slide up and along to sit flush with the roof of the garage. See below to find out which type of garage door you're looking for. Roller doors have been around for decades. In fact, B&D; invented them! B&D; roller doors consist of a metal curtain that rolls vertically to sit like a rolled up carpet directly above the door opening, leaving the ceiling area free. The space-saving, no-nonsense design of our roller door range makes them popular for modern or traditional homes, multiple tenancies and industrial buildings. Important things to consider There are a few important things to consider when purchasing a new garage door and opener. You should consider if you live in an area with extreme weather like cyclones, extreme winds or bushfires. B&D have a range of products designed to withstand the wild Australian weather but it can impact the colours and textures available, so keep this in mind when choosing your garage door. Next step? Openers and automation. Now that you know what kind of garage door you want, it's time to think about the opener. The garage door opener is the motor that sits on either the ceiling (sectional doors) or the side of the drum (roller doors) and make the garage automatically lift and lower with the touch of a button. Automation has come along way over the decades, and we would know, B&D were the first garage door supplier in Australia to automate a garage door way back in 1975. These days you don't even need a remote to open your garage door, you can just use the sound of your voice through the B&D Smart app. Now that is smart. But garage door openers don't just make it easy to come and go, they also keep your garage secure with things like automatic backdrive which forces the garage back down when it feels someone trying to lift it, or our ultra secure remote control technology that prevents criminals from entering or exiting using illegal smartphone applications. Roller Door Openers B&D roller door openers are attached to the drum on the side of the roller door and allow it to effortlessly lift and lower day after day, week after week. Roller Door Openers Roller Door Openers Roller Door Openers Sectional Door Openers Sectional door openers sit on the roof of the garage and pull the garage up and along the roof with the click of a button.
