While many homeowners may not think about garage door safety, the garage door is often the biggest mechanical, moving item in the home so it mustn't be overlooked. In this article, we will cover garage door safety tips that you need to know to improve the safety of your garage.

- 1. Child and Pet Safety The garage can be a dangerous place for children and pets if proper measures aren't taken. Teach your children about the potential risks of playing near the garage door, and keep garage door remotes out of reach to prevent accidental openings. Using garage door safety beams can greatly reduce the risk of accidents. These sensors detect objects or people in the door's path and stop the door from closing, helping prevent injuries or damage.
- 2. Safety when Entering & Exiting the Garage When driving in and out of your garage, be sure to exercise caution. It's easy to get distracted and accidentally hit the garage door or damage your car. Always make sure the garage door is fully open before driving in or out, and be aware of any obstacles or potential hazards. Remember to keep fingers and hands away from garage door parts to avoid injuries. Safety should always be a top priority when it comes to your home and your family.
- 3. Maintenance and Repairs Regular garage door maintenance is key to ensuring ongoing safety. Schedule routine inspections to confirm that everything—from springs to cables—is functioning properly. If you notice any issues or damage, arrange garage door repairs immediately to keep your door in good working order.
- 4. Emergency Procedures It is important to know how to manually operate your garage door in case of an emergency. Have a plan in case of a power outage and keep emergency contact information on hand. This can help prevent accidents and ensure the safety of your family.
- 5. Additional Safety Accessories There are additional accessories that can improve your garage doors safety. Automatic garage door locks can prevent unauthorised entry into your garage. Garage door safety beams can detect if there is an object or person in the way of the garage door and will stop the door from closing.
