We have a large network of Accredited dealers specialising in garage door installations, services and repairs throughout the ACT. If you're in the market for a new garage door, our buying guide features handy information on the different door types, styles and safety features available. Explore our range Explore our range Explore our range Types of garage doors All of our B&D; garage doors are Australian-made and available in two types: roller doors and sectional doors. Roller garage doors Sectional garage doors Tilt doors Perfect for garages, laneways, and sheds, roller garage doors are designed to roll upwards into a tight coil at the top of the door opening. This design is great for conserving overhead space in the garage. These doors are available both with and without an automatic opener. They come equipped with a robust lock to secure against unauthorised entry. Additionally, they can be built to withstand high winds, which makes them a reliable option in areas prone to cyclones. Sectional garage doors consist of multiple interconnected panels, forming a unified, solid-looking door. These doors are customisable to any garage opening, regardless of its size and shape. Differing from roller doors, sectional doors move along metal tracks attached to the garage ceiling when they open or close. Available in various styles and colours, they are a favourite for residential properties, offering a sleek appearance, durability, and practicality. Manual lifting and unlocking of garage doors are things of the past. Sectional garage doors are usually bought with an automated opener, enhancing security. Since many garage doors don't come with locks, B&D;'s automatic locking system eliminates the need for traditional locks, ensuring access is restricted to those with the remote control. Tilt doors are less common in the market due to their safety and security concerns, which is why B&D; does not produce or install them. These doors have exposed springs on each side and are made from a single, heavy piece, unlike doors with hinged panels. This heaviness can strain the springs and balancing mechanisms during operation. Worn-out springs can unexpectedly snap, leading to the door crashing down, posing a risk to people, children, pets, and vehicles. Garage door safety and security Ensuring the security is a top priority when installing a new garage door. At B&D; we focus on incorporating advanced safety features in our garage doors. Here's an overview of essential security elements to consider when purchasing a new garage door. Smart phone operation Control and monitor your garage door through a smartphone or tablet. Garage Door Warranty Garage Door Warranty Garage Door Warranty AUTO LOCK™ A closed garage door doesn't always mean it's secure. Our AUTO LOCK™ system is designed to prevent break-ins by automatically securing the door with a heavy-duty bolt when it receives a command from the remote control. This eliminates the need for a physical key. AUTO LOCK™ AUTO LOCK™ AUTO LOCK™ Automatic Reverse and Backdrive Our garage doors are equipped with an Automatic Reverse mechanism integrated into the motor. This system detects resistance or blockages, preventing the door from closing on obstacles like people or belongings. The Automatic Backdrive activates to reverse the motor's direction if there's an attempt to force the door open from the outside. Openers and Remotes Openers and Remotes Infrared motion detection Beyond the auto-reverse feature, we offer wireless safety beams for added protection. These beams, placed near the bottom of the garage door, detect any object in the door's closing path. The door won't close while an obstruction is detected, and the system will automatically reverse the door if the beam is interrupted, reducing accidents and injuries.
