Our helpful buying guide has plenty of information on the different door types, styles and security features to look for when purchasing a new garage door. Explore our range Explore our range Explore our range Types of garage doors All of our B&D; garage doors are Australian-made and available in two types: roller doors and sectional doors. Roller garage doors Sectional garage doors Tilt doors Roller garage doors provide a practical and affordable option for garages, laneways, and storage sheds. Their design is space-efficient, allowing the ceiling to be utilised for lighting or additional storage. These doors operate by rolling upwards into a tight coil at the top of the door space, enabling vehicles to park close to the door, conserving space in the driveway. These doors are available with an optional automatic opener and are known for their robust security features, including a solid key lock system to deter unauthorised access. Moreover, they can be constructed to endure high wind conditions, which makes them a suitable choice for areas frequently affected by cyclones. Constructed from multiple interconnected panels, sectional garage doors give the appearance of a single, unified door. They are customisable to accommodate various garage sizes and shapes. Differing from roller doors, these doors glide along metal tracks on the ceiling when opened or closed. Available in various designs and colours, they are favoured for residential homes thanks to their contemporary look, durability, and practicality. The days of manually opening and locking garage doors are gone. Sectional garage doors are typically bought along with an automatic opener to enhance security. B&D;'s automatic locking system eliminates the need for manual locks, ensuring access is restricted to those with a remote control, thereby providing added security. Tilt doors are not as commonly used due to their safety and security concerns, and as a result, B&D; does not produce or install them. These doors are made from a single, solid piece and use exposed springs on each side for operation, which makes them relatively heavier. This weight places additional strain on the springs and balancing mechanism, leading to wear and potential breakage. When springs fail, the door can abruptly close, posing a danger to people, pets, and vehicles. Garage door safety and security At B&D;, our top priority is to provide the highest level of security and safety for our clients with every garage door we install. Here's an overview of essential safety features to consider when purchasing a new garage door.

Smart phone operation Our garage doors can be operated and monitored using a smartphone or tablet. The B&D; Smart Phone app allows connection to several devices simultaneously and notifies you if the door is left open, activated, or blocked.

AUTO LOCK™ A closed garage door doesn't necessarily mean it's secure. The AUTO LOCK™ is engineered to prevent unauthorised lifting of an unsecured garage door. It activates a heavy-duty bolt lock through a signal from the remote control, eliminating the need for a key.

AUTO LOCK™ AUTO LOCK™ AUTO LOCK™

Automatic Reverse and Backdrive Each B&D; automatic garage door incorporates an auto-reverse function within its motor, detecting any resistance or blockage. The Automatic Reverse feature stops the door from closing on obstacles like people or belongings, while the Automatic Backdrive activates the motor to reverse if an attempt is made to force the door open.

Infrared motion detection Beyond the auto-reverse feature, we also install wireless safety beams for added protection. These beams, positioned just above the ground level of the garage door, prevent the door from closing if they detect any obstruction in its path. The door will reverse automatically if the beam is interrupted, reducing the risk of accidents.

Choosing a garage door style Garage doors are available in a wide range of materials, designs, colours, and finishes, ranging from upscale designer doors to classic styles. They make up about 60% of a house's frontage, serving as a central feature alongside front doors, windows, and external cladding. So, choosing high-quality garage doors is crucial.

COLORBOND garage doors offer the advantage of integrating smoothly with both new and existing colour palettes, as well as with other steel elements of your house. On the other hand, Knotwood provides a high-quality woodgrain finish that emulates the texture and warmth of real timber, giving your home an earthy and natural look.

Feeling overwhelmed about where to begin? We can ease the decision-making process.
