We service throughout Perth and regional Western Australia, including Malaga, Bunbury, Kalgoorlie, Albany, Dunsborough, Broome, Wangara, Margaret River and Geraldton. Explore our range Explore our range Types of garage doors All of our B&D; garage doors are Australian-made and available in two types: roller doors and sectional doors. Roller garage doors Sectional garage doors Tilt doors Roller garage doors are a practical and cost-effective solution for safeguarding garages, laneways, and sheds. Their design is a great space-saver as it allows for the use of the ceiling space for additional lighting or for storage purposes. These doors work by rolling up into a tight coil at the top of the door frame. This design is particularly useful because it allows cars to be parked close to the door, maximising the available space in the driveway. You can choose between manual and automatic roller garage doors, both equipped with a solid key lock mechanism, adding an extra layer of security by deterring unauthorised entry. Additionally, they can be reinforced to resist strong winds, which is an essential feature for areas that are susceptible to cyclones. Sectional garage doors are made up of several jointed panels and give the appearance of a single, solid door. They are adaptable to a range of garage sizes and shapes. Unlike roller doors, sectional doors glide on metal tracks fixed to the ceiling when they open or close. These doors come in various styles and colours, making them popular in residential homes for their modern appearance, longevity, and functionality. With sectional garage doors, the practice of manually lifting and locking garage doors is a thing of the past. These doors are often purchased with an automated opener for added security. The distinctive feature of B&D;'s automatic locking system does away with the need for manual locks, ensuring that only those with the remote control can access the garage. Tilt doors are becoming less common in the market due to concerns regarding safety and security, reasons why B&D; does not offer or install them. These doors are composed of a single, solid panel with exposed springs on either side. Operating these doors puts considerable stress on the springs and the balancing mechanism. Over time, these springs can wear out and may suddenly snap, causing the door to close abruptly, which can be hazardous to people, animals, and vehicles. Garage door safety and security Security is our main priority here at B&D.; We're committed to the highest standards of safety to ensure our customers are kept out of harm's way. Below are the must-have security features to look for when in the market for a new garage door. Smart phone operation Control and monitor your garage door using your smartphone or tablet with our smartphone-operated doors .
