Do I need BAL-Maze for my garage? What is your home's BAL-Rating? The Bushfire Attack Level (BAL) is a rating that all new homes built in Australia need to take into consideration before building commences. The BAL rating for your home takes into consideration a number of factors, including the Fire Danger Index, surrounding vegetation of your property, the terrain of the land and how close your home is in proximity to others. To find out the BAL-rating for your home you will need to have a bushfire hazard assessment completed for your site. Anyone can request a BAL assessment and with the increasing risk of bushfires in Australia, B&D; recommends that anyone building a new home or renovating their existing home should consider getting a BAL-rating completed. It's simple, just phone us on 13 62 63 or visit your local B&D; dealer . I live in bushfire prone area is BAL-Maze suited to me? B&D;'s incredible BAL-Maze sectional garage door has been purpose built for homes in bushfire prone areas. Our BAL-Maze garage door will protect your home in a bushfire up to a BAL-rating of 40 which is higher than any other garage door in the market. It's the only BAL-rated garage door to be independently tested and certified by the CSIRO. If you're building new in a bushfire prone region, don't risk it. Install a B&D; BAL-Maze sectional door. Can I replace a single panel or section of my door, or do I need to replace the whole door? Yes, if it's a genuine B&D; sectional garage door you can replace a single section. Sectional door panels can be replaced if the damage to them is minimal. If the damage has affected a more major component of the door (for example the frame) then you will need to replace the entire door as doors that have bent their frames or fallen off their hinges are usually too dangerous to repair. A number of factors are considered when replacing the panel of the door including the age of the door and any upgrades we may have made to the machinery that manufactures our doors. Due to the every day wear and tear of your garage door we can't guarantee that the new panel will be a perfect colour match as colours tend to fade and lighten in the harsh Australian climate. Likewise if you have a sublimated garage door or a garage door with a woodgrain texture we recommend you purchase all new panels as the colour/grain will likely not be a perfect match. If you purchased your B&D; door through one of our Accredited B&D; Dealers we recommend you contact them first as they will have detailed records of your purchase to ensure a good fit. If you're not sure give our friendly team a call on 13 62 63 . If you don't have a B&D; door, we can organise a complimentary consultation to recommend you a new door to help you secure your garage. How do I manually open a B&D; sectional garage door? You can follow our quick how to video below.
